

Introduction

Trinity College, Cambridge, was founded in 1546 by Henry VIII. Professor Sally Davies is Master and there are around 190 Fellows covering most branches of learning. There are approximately 730 undergraduate and 350 postgraduate students.

Applications are invited for appointment to a 6-hour College Lectureship in Linguistics together with a Fellowship. The successful applicant - who will hold a UTO position in the University - will supervise in the Linguistics Tripos, and assist with direction of studies and admissions in Linguistics.

Trinity admits 2-4 students each year to read Linguistics. There are four other teaching Fellows in cognate areas covering Modern and Medieval Languages. College teaching for undergraduates in Linguistics takes place in 'supervision' classes. Undergraduates usually attend these classes in pairs, having prepared written work or examples beforehand. The College teaching is intended to supplement and reinforce the University teaching. Further information concerning the courses and their contents can be found on the main departmental website at:

College Lecturer Duties

The duties of a College Lecturer include:

- Teaching undergraduates in supervisions for at least 6 hours per week during the 20 teaching weeks of the academic year.
- Directing studies of undergraduate students, which involves advising students on their studies, arranging their supervisions, encouraging their progress and providing letters of reference. An entertainment allowance is available to help with entertaining directees. Lecturers are also encouraged to attend the Matriculation and Graduation Dinners.
- Actively participating in the admissions process. This involves carrying out admission interviews, usually over the course of one week after the end of Michaelmas term, and taking part in the ensuing selection meetings. There are Open Days each year when sixth formers come to College. Lecturers are also encouraged to attract more and better candidates, e.g. by making contacts with schools.

- Assisting with the formulation of College academic progress and interview test papers, as required. There may be a short examination for first-year students at the beginning of the Lent Term, which Lecturers set and mark.
- Participation in College business as needed, such as serving on committees.
- In addition, College Lecturers are expected to devote themselves to learning, research and publications in their chosen field.

Stipend

The Lectureship will require six hours per week of College teaching (for 20 weeks per year). The starting salary, payable in addition to the university salary, will normally be on Step 7 of the College scale for 6-hour lecturers (£10,847 per annum), together with other benefits of College membership. Variation is made for supervision above (or below) the specified amount, and additional payments are made for direction of studies and for interviewing candidates for admission. The post is pensionable.

Other benefits

The successful applicant will be elected into a Fellowship of the College. A Fellow who fulfils certain conditions about residence is entitled to a set of rooms in College, free of rent and Council Tax but subject to charges for utilities, service, etc. Fellows not resident in College must normally reside during Full Term within the precincts of the University (twenty mile radius) and are entitled to a teaching room in the College free of charge. There are schemes for assisting with house purchase, childcare and with computing and book purchases. In addition, a Fellow is entitled to ninety free meals per quarter at the High Table, may apply to the College for assistance towards research expenses, and may apply for sabbatical leave on conditions similar to those laid down for University Officers.

Other details

The appointment will be initially for five years. The Education Committee of the College will normally consider the case for reappointing the Lecturer to the retiring age during the fourth year of their tenure.
