

IMPACT REPORT 2020–21

Alumni Relations & Development Office

MESSAGE FROM THE MASTER

It is my pleasure to introduce this report sharing the impact of our alumni and friends' support for the College in 2020–21. On behalf of the Trinity Fellowship, I would like to give our heartfelt thanks for your generosity throughout another difficult year. We are profoundly grateful for your continued kindness.

You are helping Trinity to meet our commitment to provide world-class teaching and learning to all our students; to expand student support so all can participate fully in Cambridge life; and to conduct cutting-edge research that changes lives and benefits society. Through us at Trinity, you are also helping students and colleagues across the whole University to achieve their aims.

We are proud of what we have achieved together, but we want to do more. With your continued support, even more is possible.

FROM THE CHAIR

Dr Michael Banner Dean, and Chair of Alumni Relations & Development

I hope you find our report inspiring and you will see the impact of your generosity on the lives of our students and the future of Trinity. Your steadfast support throughout another year disrupted by the pandemic has made a world of difference.

This year you have given a total amount of £3.6m in new gifts, legacies, and pledges, enabling Trinity to further its access and outreach initiatives and enhance teaching and research. Highlights of your giving include generous support to alleviate hardship faced by foreign students due to COVID-19, to provide top-up and full undergraduate bursaries, and to establish new MPhil and PhD studentships so that we can continue to attract and nurture the best research talent.

You gave £967,282 to the Annual Fund, enabling Trinity to provide more funding for other priorities including access and outreach, the Choir, and the Boat Club. A remarkable 64% of alumni called donated during the December 2020 Telethon and together raised over £278,000. Ten legacies will also support the College's priorities long into the future.

We were delighted that over 1,500 alumni from around the world joined us for at least one event. Our popular virtual event programme continued, including the illuminating Trinity Research Talk Series, which shares the latest research from our Fellows. Thanks to the enthusiasm and commitment of our volunteer committee members, our associations and groups kept going too. Trinity in Japan delivered an exceptional online events series with distinguished guest speakers that was open to all alumni, and a virtual series with Dame Sally Davies (e2019) enabled alumni in Hong Kong, Singapore and East and West Coast USA to 'Meet the Master'.

We are immensely grateful that so many of you have supported us so generously through another challenging year. Please do continue to keep in touch with the Alumni Relations and Development Office, led by Executive Director Bill O'Hearn, who joined the team during the year. His report on page 10 shares a recent landmark in our fundraising efforts, made possible because of your loyalty to Trinity. Thank you for all that you do.

Keeping students going and growing

COVID-19 has had a profound effect on so many students' lives. They have had to deal with situations and obstacles that never could have been anticipated.

Early in the pandemic, Trinity recognised that PhD students would need additional support because their funding was finite, and their research would be significantly disrupted. UK national lockdowns meant there was no access to laboratories and libraries and, even when students were able to return, social distancing restricted available research space.

The College expects to be granting funding extensions to PhD students and providing additional support for several years to come. Trinity is deeply grateful for gifts to the COVID-19 Hardship Fund, which have supported more than 30 PhD students suffering hardship in 2020–21.

I am pursuing a PhD in Theology and Religious Studies. My research interests at the intersection of religion and literature now find me in the fourth year of doctoral research, writing up my thesis on Dante Alighieri's engagement with Augustine of Hippo.

Looking back on the past year, although COVID-19 is far from relegated to the rear-mirror, few words adequately name the raw pain, loneliness, and loss into which the world plunged. Though it felt at times irresponsible to continue pursuing graduate study during a pandemic, I am convinced that long-term solutions, not solely for public health but also for our common humanity, the common good, and our common home are just as urgent, and in need of rigorous and responsive study.

Thus, my deep gratitude to the anonymous donor who so generously offered financial support for this concluding phase of my (and many other students') doctoral research. Already managing before COVID hit on a shoestring budget, and with a long-distance marriage due to immigration complications, my wife and I soon shouldered additional and unexpected burdens including company closure, further visa issues, and the wonderful – but certainly anxiety-inducing – news that we were to become parents. Now finally settled in Cambridge with my wife and daughter, I heartily add my voice to the chorus of thanks due to those who give without counting the cost and, in particular, to the donor who has provided this next stepping stone of stability as we navigate the coming year.

Thomas Graff (2017)

Together, you are supporting students in need

Alumni are helping Trinity remove financial barriers and worries so that students can concentrate on their studies and maximise their Cambridge experience.

The Tim McDowall Bursary

Ten alumni* who matriculated in 1983 and 1984 have come together to establish an undergraduate bursary in memory of their friend, Tim McDowall (1984). By combining their gifts in honour of Tim, their generous support will provide a three-year bursary from 2021–22 for UK students from a disadvantaged background.

Gifts like this ensure that students with the talent and ambition to succeed at Trinity are able to do so, and also provide an opportunity for friends to come together and support the initiatives closest to them.

I was happy to be part of a group of ten friends from my year who have recently come together to make regular gifts to fund a bursary in memory of a wonderful Trinity friend. It's great to be able to help students who need financial assistance to enjoy the amazing Trinity experience. The College Alumni Relations team made it really easy for us to make it happen. It would be great to get more of us to do the same.

Sometimes an email catches you unexpectedly: this one lifted me straight back to New Court, 1987, laughing uncontrollably at one of Tim McDowall's wilder stories. The message asked me to consider contributing with a group of friends to a bursary in memory of Tim – a bursary that would make a real difference to someone young, perhaps someone bursting with life, intelligence, and kindness as he was. The scheme has brought us together; sharing the cost makes it affordable and doing something tangible to honour Tim's life was and continues to be an uplifting experience.

Dr Lucy Pollock (1984)

The Harding Challenge: doubling your impact

What makes your gifts towards our student support funds even more impactful is that if they qualify for the Harding Challenge, they will not only benefit students at Trinity but also release an equivalent contribution to a special fund for undergraduates in greatest need across Cambridge.

The Challenge fund was established in 2019 through a donation to the University from Claudia and David Harding, to encourage new donors and inspire those who have not given recently to do so. We are especially delighted that 28 donors to Trinity in 2020–21 who gave a total of more than £42,000 also unlocked an equivalent amount to support Cambridge undergraduates in need.

To qualify for the Challenge, a gift must be made to one of our student support funds, for a bursary or studentship, or more broadly for student activities, which include the Choir and the Boat Club. New donations of any size up to £100,000 can contribute, and every gift makes a tangible difference to student lives. To discover more, visit the website:

Enriching students' lives

Your support enables our students to embrace the unrivalled opportunities Cambridge has to offer. You help them to discover interests outside their academic work and to develop friendships that enrich their time at Trinity and beyond.

Thanks to the generosity of the First and Third Ladies' Crew 1978–79 – Claire Allen, Jane Corbett, Joan Lasenby, Pippa Latham-French, Janet Lefroy, Jacqueline Lindgren, Amanda North, Harriet Scorer, and Margaret Spillane – the Boat Club was able to purchase a magnificent new women's racing eight, 'Amanda', which was launched in a special event on 23 October 2021.

The Neil Hopkinson Memorial Fund: helping students thrive

© NATASHA KINGHAM

A renowned scholar of the Greek poetry of the Hellenistic Age and Roman Empire, Dr Neil Hopkinson (e1983), Director of Studies in Classics at Trinity, was beloved by generations of students for his dedication to their teaching and his impact on their lives, both academically and personally. Following his passing in January 2021, the Neil Hopkinson Memorial Fund was established to celebrate his unique contribution to the study and teaching of undergraduates in Classics at Cambridge. The fund supports students from low-income households, with a preference for those who have not studied Greek before. If there are no qualifying candidates at Trinity, a student at another Cambridge College will be supported.

Over 60 Trinity members have given to the fund and their generosity will see the first recipient joining the College in 2022. Working together, alumni are providing students from all backgrounds with the opportunity to realise their ambitions.

Legacies: meeting tomorrow's challenges

COVID-19 prompted us to plan for an unpredictable future. By leaving a gift in their will, ten donors have this year helped Trinity to prepare for unforeseen challenges.

Legacy gifts can also honour a loved one. In 2021, Trinity learned of a legacy in memory of Herbert Hawkins (1895), who was a Cambridge Cricket Blue, a schoolmaster in France and Sri Lanka, and served in the Royal Garrison Artillery in World War One. He drowned in 1933. In 1947, his brother, Charles, set up a family trust, with half the residuary directed to Trinity in Herbert's name, to support 'necessitous and deserving undergraduates'. 74 years later, the legacy has been fulfilled with a large gift to the College.

Access and Outreach: breaking down barriers

Trinity is indebted to everyone who has supported its Access and Outreach activities during another challenging year for students.

With your help, the College has delivered exciting new partnerships and projects to raise awareness of the many different opportunities open to students post-16, so it can continue to increase the diversity of the student population, enriching Trinity's community. Here is just part of what you have made possible.

The best part was getting to listen to the amazing women speakers who are part of the mathematical world!

'Easy as Pi' Masterclasses, Autumn 2020 – Spring 2021

The College ran a series of webinars for female students interested in mathematics, a subject which often sees a significant drop-off in high-achieving female students between A-Level and university. The aim was to empower students by showing how much they are valued and needed in the field – in terms of gender, ethnicity, and background – through lectures by female mathematicians, alumnae talks, admissions sessions, and taster exercises.

The initial participant feedback that over 80% were 'moderately unconfident' about being a female student of mathematics transformed into 90% being either 'slightly' or 'very confident'.

Love Languages Programme November 2020 – April 2021

The study of languages is rapidly declining, both at A-Level and university level. To combat this, Trinity launched an online masterclass series tackling preconceptions about the study of languages and the University of Cambridge.

Through six masterclasses spanning six months, Trinity hosted 500 students from a record 2,400 applications, with the vast majority remaining engaged across every session. After the final session, 93% of participants wished to study a language at university level, up from 64% in the first session feedback.

This programme is amazing, and I am so thankful to be chosen for it!

Target Oxbridge Year 10 Programme, April – July 2021

The Trinity College and Target Oxbridge webinar series offered four one-hour guidance sessions to Year 10 students (14-15 years) of African-Caribbean heritage, focused on demystifying and debunking preconceptions about institutions such as Oxford and Cambridge.

Around 500 students attended each session and the series comprised discussions on subject choice, Oxbridge life, careers, the application system, and a Q & A forum featuring alumni and current undergraduates.

The Brilliant Club X Trinity College Transition Project, April 2021 – December 2022

Trinity partnered with The Brilliant Club to develop an exciting two-year programme for graduates of their Scholars Programme based in the North of England who are interested in applying to Oxbridge. The Transition Project aims to support students to develop the skills and knowledge to apply to highly selective universities. As part of the Brilliant Club Scholars Programme, PhD tutors share their subject knowledge and passion for learning through tutorials with small groups of pupils across the UK. Pupils also complete a university-level assignment, attend a summer school at Trinity, and receive a series of bespoke sessions to support their UCAS application and the transition from Year 13 to university.

It was very helpful for me and made me realise Cambridge is the university for me.

Enhancing bursary provision

To meet the challenge of supporting an increasing number of undergraduate students facing financial pressures, Trinity led the way in devising and introducing the Top-Up Bursary Scheme in 2019–20, in collaboration with other Cambridge Colleges. The scheme would not have been possible without alumni help.

Thanks to your ongoing support, the College has this year continued to take a leading role in promoting and funding enhanced bursaries, not only at Trinity but across the University. Kind gifts from alumni including David Manns (1964) will ensure that students in need can concentrate on their studies, and make the most of Cambridge.

In a time of unprecedented challenge and looking for a way to 'do something', I was delighted to learn of the College's wonderful Bursary Scheme initiative – and through it, to help support a generation of talented students whose efforts will be crucial to building a better world.

David Manns (1964)

FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Bill O'Hearn Executive Director of Alumni Relations & Development

I joined Trinity as Executive Director of Alumni Relations and Development in February 2021 and it has been an exciting first year getting to know the College and its members. It has been wonderful to meet so many alumni, to hear about their achievements, how Trinity has helped shape their lives, and the many ways in which they are giving back.

I have been exceptionally impressed by the strong alumni support for the College in recent years. In less than ten years, over 3,400 alumni and friends have contributed more than £50 million to the College and have pledged even more into the future.

Our alumni and friends know that Trinity is leading on important initiatives to invest in research, outreach, and student support, both at the College and across the Collegiate University. As the Senior Bursar's report on pages 11–13 highlights, Trinity is committed to continuing outstanding stewardship of its resources to ensure the current and long-term vitality of the College and Cambridge. Given the global and national challenges ahead, it is more important than ever that Trinity leads. We are grateful for the involvement and support of all those who care deeply for the College. Their continued support will enable us to do even more.

FROM THE SENIOR BURSAR

Richard Turnill Senior Bursar

It is my pleasure to take part in this year's Impact Report as Senior Bursar at Trinity, succeeding Rory Landman who stepped down after 14 years of service to the College. I am familiar with Cambridge from my student days, so I am humbled to be back in this beautiful city, which holds so many fond memories for me.

This year, we faced unprecedented challenges and I have been impressed by how the College has come together as a community. Some activities have resumed, and I have been able to take part in more of the popular College events including night punting, bowls, and the Advent service in Chapel. I have also had a chance to engage more closely with Fellows, students, and our alumni, whose continued generosity and support makes such a tremendous difference to what Trinity is able to achieve.

Trinity's endowment has proved to be resilient, thanks to the many excellent long-term investment decisions made by my predecessors. Though income from rents and dividends has fallen, the performance of the endowment has been strong this year in capital terms, with the valuation of the College's assets rising to above £1.87bn (2020: £1.54bn). This increase is driven both by broad market conditions, and by the performance of specific holdings. We have benefited from the positioning of the portfolio and notably from property investment decisions where we have added value through investing in infrastructure and gaining planning permission for residential development. The Cambridge Science Park and Felixstowe remain two of the key drivers of the success of the endowment.

The endowment plays an increasingly important role in the financing of the College’s mission, supporting education (34.2% of spending on teaching, tutorial and admissions), and research (7.9% of spending). Trinity also continues to support the University and wider community. In 2021 we contributed £2.8m to the University and also made grants totalling £5m, mainly to support wider collegiate Cambridge. We have maintained spending on scholarships and awards at £6m. The endowment also supports the maintenance of Trinity’s historic buildings. In particular, this year we began the renovation of North West Great Court, and expect to complete the project by the end of 2023.

We have weathered the storm. But, beyond any individual year, the success of the endowment in supporting the College is measured in decades. Prospective long run returns have fallen, as seen in declining yields. In this environment, we will continue to manage the endowment actively and be innovative in our search for return.

Committing to net zero

This same active and innovative approach also needs to be applied to another topic, one that matters deeply to the College: climate change. In February 2021, Trinity decided to give its endowment a dual mandate: to continue delivering sustainable financial returns, and to commit to a significant, lasting, and positive impact on improving its environmental footprint and achieving net zero before 2050. We committed to undertaking a carbon baseline report (on the level and source of Trinity’s carbon emissions), a roadmap to net zero, and to divest from all fossil fuel investments.

I am proud to say that we have made significant progress since February 2021. We are now divested from fossil fuels in our public equities. We have completed a full baseline of the carbon emissions of the endowment. The latter has been an exciting and large-scale project. The baseline involved the collaboration of hundreds of tenants, and the steer of Trinity Fellows and external advisors who demonstrated the incredible commitment of our community to this global challenge.

The baseline has also been a chance for us to learn. The endowment’s carbon footprint is around 200k tonnes/Co2e, roughly evenly split between securities and property. The footprint is highly concentrated. For example, the top 5% of emitting buildings are responsible for over half of emissions from buildings. The footprint is also not necessarily where we thought we might find it, with Cambridge Science Park accounting for the largest part of the endowment’s emissions.

Based on this knowledge, we have turned our attention to the roadmap, which will lay out the levers available to us to decarbonise the endowment. The roadmap will set intermediate targets and most importantly focus on achieving real-world impact. Our goal is to communicate on progress regularly, both against intermediate targets and by measuring direct impact bottom-up.

The next step will be to start on implementation and to take significant measures to decarbonise the endowment. Unfortunately, there are no easy wins. The support of the Trinity community, especially our alumni, has been unwavering in the face of COVID-19 and will be critical once again in facing the climate crisis and in helping Trinity achieve our environmental ambitions.

Telethon

Every year, Trinity holds telephone fundraising campaigns that connect a team of student callers with alumni all over the world.

Together, you pledged over £278,000 to support priorities including Widening Participation; student support; the Boat Club; the Choir; and the Field Club. Every gift will go towards ensuring that students have the best possible experience. Every story you shared, and piece of advice you offered, was appreciated.

OPENING UP OPPORTUNITIES

Meet the callers

Michelle Acheampong (2020)

Studying at Trinity was not my initial dream. As a black woman from a working-class background, I perceived many prestigious institutions as places where I wouldn't fit in or that I wouldn't enjoy.

This changed after my parents encouraged me to attend an access trip to Trinity, where the College fully subsidised food and travel. These trips are made possible with the help of donations from alumni towards access. I am extremely grateful I was able to attend since it was here that my misconceptions about Cambridge were eradicated, and where I first heard about my degree: Land Economy, which I am really enjoying.

So, I have endeavoured to play an active role in access and other initiatives such as being a Trinity ambassador; a COVID access scheme mentor; taking part in Trinity's first two Black History Month celebrations and exhibitions; and being a Telethon student caller, which I've enjoyed so much I've taken part in three already! It has been amazing talking with alumni about the astonishing difference their gifts make. They have also kindly given me such inspiring advice. One lesson that stood out is 'rejection is redirection', as shared by one alumna who initially performed badly in her 2nd year exams, changed her specialisation, and excelled so much she now lectures at Harvard!

Owain Cooke (2019)

I am an undergraduate studying law, and I have enjoyed being part of the Trinity College Law Society. I am Captain of the Trinity Rugby Club, which is on track to top the College League this season, and I am also the Head of Business Development at the Cambridge Journal of Law, Politics and Art – a highly-regarded student journal started at Trinity in 2021. As part of the wider University,

I am a member of the Riding Club and the Wilberforce Society (a student think tank).

All of this would not be possible without the financial support I receive from the Trinity College student support fund. The bursary has enabled me to take part in all the opportunities Trinity and Cambridge have to offer, which is why I was so keen to work on the Telethon. I really enjoyed talking to alumni about their experiences at Cambridge, and it was fantastic to hear how many were excited to make gifts to support the current generation of students. It was so good to have the opportunity to tell alumni about the difference their generosity makes to our lives.

Annual Fund

Your gifts to the Annual Fund have provided vital support that has helped Trinity in numerous ways this year, from enabling us to attract and nurture the very best students, to maintaining our standing as a world leader in teaching and research.

Chong Zhao (2006)

When I was an undergraduate student at Trinity, I was a recipient of the Overseas Student Grant, which provided immense support for my studies. Those four years will always be amongst the best memories of my life.

When I think of ways of giving back to the College, I am determined to make regular contributions which could help future generations to study in this great institution. As the Master said at our graduation, ‘Wherever you go, carry the Trinity spirit with you.’

We use your data to keep in touch with you, to provide information on services we provide to you and to keep you informed of College news and activities. Your data are held on the College's Alumni Relations and Development database. Full details on how your data are held and used are set out in our Data Protection Statement at trin.cam.ac.uk/alumni/information/dataprotectionstatement or you are welcome to request a hard copy from us. Some sensitive personal information may be held in the database. You have the right to contact us at any time to change how your data are used or to tell us that you do not want to receive a specific communication. Please contact us by emailing alumni@trin.cam.ac.uk or by calling +44(0)1223 761527. If you would prefer to write to us, please address your letter to Alumni Relations & Development Office, Trinity College, Cambridge, CB2 1TQ.

Celebration time for graduating students with Praelector Professor
Hugh Hunt, June 2021.

REMEMBER TRINITY IN YOUR WILL: transform tomorrow today

Leaving a gift in your will can enhance all areas of the College's activities, helping those who benefit to achieve remarkable things.

For those who will follow in your footsteps, your gift could remove financial obstacles to success, provide new opportunities or challenges, or support world-changing research in an area close to your heart.

After making provision for loved ones and dependants, you may choose to remember institutions that have helped to shape your life. Leaving a gift to Trinity will make a lasting impact and ensure that your hopes and ambitions live on.

Gifts cost nothing to make now, and to celebrate your generosity you will be welcomed as a lifetime member of the Great Court Circle.
